DECORATION METHODS

DIGITAL PRINTING

This method prints digital-based artwork directly onto various media.

ROTARY DIGITAL PRINTING

This involves printing digital-based artwork directly onto cylindrical products like drinkware.

PAD PRINTING

This method, referred to as 1 colour in the catalogue, uses a silicone pad to transfer an image to a product from a laser etched printing plate.

SCREEN PRINTING

This method, referred to as 1 colour in the catalogue, involves pushing ink through a mesh screen, imprinting a coloured design onto the material's surface.

LASER ENGRAVING

This type of decoration uses a laser beam to mark high-quality text and graphics on various products.

TRANSFER

This entails printing a design on transfer film, which can then be applied to fabrics or other materials using a heat press.

SUBLIMATION

This method enhances polyester and synthetic items with vibrant, enduring colours that resist fading, seamlessly integrating graphics and colours into the fabric.

LABEL

This involves printing logos digitally on rolls, which are then applied on various products.
